Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from A Year s Campaign Against Dirt: Suggestions to Citizens of Cities, Towns, Villages and Hamlets, How to Keep Their Streets and Homes in a Healthful Condition To conquer the dirt which is unsightly, noisome, and may be pestiferous, we must work without interruption. This does not necessarily imply toil beyond the ability of every person in their particular sphere, but it means patient, methodical, day-by-day care and attention to details. It is really shameful to see communities stricken with panic at the approach of pestilential disease, and notice how unreasonable their efforts are to do something to stifle the disease-bearing effluvia. In a time not far passed methods have been employed for warding off disease, so entirely inadequate, so utterly without foundation in any sanitary principle, as to excite pity and derision. Rosin and tar by the hundreds of barrels have been burned without stint, covering a whole city with a pall of smoke, with the expectation of purifying an atmosphere foul with the accumulated dirt of many years, in a few days. Are we more enlightened now? Is there a widely diffused knowledge of sanitary principles among our people sufficient to sustain and guide them in time of threatened danger? Do not city authorities even now invoke the talismanic authority of the Board of Health to avert disease, and having done this, cease their efforts? It has not been many years since the authorities of one of our sea-board cities sent a committee of physicians to the quarantine station to enquire what could be done to make the quarantine service more efficient. This was in a time when yellow-fever was prevalent in the West...
